

PHILANTHROPY AT WORK

FUNDERS SUPPORT HEALTHY COMMUNITIES

Downtown Phoenix is about to get its first grocery store in 30 years, but don't expect it to carry the name of a popular chain. The Phoenix Public Market Urban Grocery and Wine Bar is a 2,000 square foot retail extension of the bi-weekly Phoenix Public Market. Both ventures are dedicated to providing local, fresh, healthy foods and are managed by the nonprofit Community Food Connections. Their work, supported by St. Luke's Health Initiatives and a number of philanthropic funders, is focused on growing strong communities through healthy food, healthy families and healthy farms in Arizona. Without Community Food Connections, and the funders who support them, who else would focus on this work?
