

FUNDERS SUPPORT RESILIENCE

“When you are diagnosed with cancer, you can lose most of your other identities – mother, wife, sister, daughter, employee – they all get overshadowed. Not at The Wellness Community. Here, I get to be the real Michelle, not Michelle the cancer patient,” says colon cancer survivor Michelle Hastings. Funders like St. Luke’s Health Initiatives (SLHI) support the more than 10,000 annual visits of adults and teens at any stage of cancer. Family members, friends, partners, and caregivers engage in a variety of nutrition, exercise, stress management, educational and family programs. In doing so, they tap into wells of strength and support for their journey that aren’t found anywhere else.
